Kansas Oil and Gas Taxes

Minimizing the Burden

April 27, 2017 4-6pm

Law Offices of Morris Laing • 300 N. Mead, Suite 200 • Wichita, KS 67202

This seminar will explore the complex array of state and locally assessed taxes that impact the Kansas oil and gas industry. The focus will be identifying opportunities for avoiding and minimizing your tax burden in all aspects of the business cycle through targeted exemption applications as well as state and local level equalization and protest appeals. Specific discussion topics will include sales/use tax exemptions for exploration, drilling, and operational outlays; severance tax and ad valorem property tax assessments and exemptions; classification and assessment of lease equipment; and appraisal standards and guidelines for estimating fair market value of mineral assets.

RSVP to Cameron Michaud by April 21, 2017

*1.5 hours of recertification credit pending from AAPL and CPA CPE

Presenting Lawyers

Trevor C. Wohlford

Trevor represents private and public entities in state and federal courts, as well as administrative tribunals, in matters ranging from mineral royalty disputes to complex tax litigation. Before joining Morris Laing, Trevor served for nearly a decade at the Kansas Board of Tax Appeals, where he was appointed by three different governors to various positions, including tax judge, executive director, and general counsel.

The focus of Jon's practice is oil and gas law. He has extensive experience representing clients before the Kansas Corporation Commission, where he has successfully permitted numerous secondary and tertiary recovery projects, including the State's first underground pad drilling project, and has further defended penalty orders and obtained special permissions and exceptions. He also has significant experience preparing and negotiating leasehold and mineral acquisition and divesture agreements, exploration, development and participation agreements, joint operating and unit agreements, and disposal and surface use agreements. He is a member of KIOGA and the WAPL, and has presented on an array of topics before those organizations.
